

a different view on heritage education

A different view on heritage education is a five day training course on heritage education aiming at both teachers (secondary and adult education) and educational guides or officers from all over Europe.

- you are looking for tools and methods to get started with heritage education
- you are experienced in heritage education and want to stretch your thinking

The course is an introduction to experience based learning concerning heritage, with a focus on the arts. Art based methods are used to explore and investigate different types of heritage. This investigation leads to an artistic outcome.

Sharing experiences and discussing ideas on heritage education will be part of the program too.

The course content is developed by De Veerman (The Ferryman), a Flemish arts educational organisation. Course language: English Specialised knowledge of heritage themes and/or art disciplines is not required.
